Step 9: Made direct amend to such people wherever possible, except when to do so would injure them or others.

Step 9 is all about rolling up your sleeves and actually cleaning up the wreckage of the past through direct amends. While owning your mistakes brings incredible spiritual relief, the step isn't designed as a selfish guilt-eraser just so you can sleep better at night. Real people bore the brunt of that harm, so the focus has to stay entirely on their healing, dignity, and what you can do to put things right, never on forcing an apology just to unburden your own conscience. And as always, talk to your sponsor!

Tradition 9: AA, as such, ought never be organized; but we may create service boards or committees directly responsible to those they serve.

Nobody is the boss, there is no corporate ladder to climb, and no one can issue orders or kick you out. Instead of top-down management, AA relies on temporary service committees whose only job is to help carry the message. It keeps the focus purely on service and humility rather than power and control, making sure the fellowship exists to help the newcomer rather than run an institution. Service positions also give individuals a chance to use their talents to contribute to making AA a more vibrant community while strengthening their own recovery.
